Eynon Davies; Entering Upon His Ministry as Pastor of the Church; Paul s Passion for Christ; The Cross of Christ To the men of his generation the Christian apostleship of Paul was a great paradox. Amongst his fellow-apostles he stood preeminent in intellectual greatness, in varied learning, in Pharisaic reputation, in intensity of religious passion, and in the practical energy and daring with which he propagated Christianity. The antagonism that he provoked is a measure of his power. Few men in human history have excited more surprise, or provoked so much denunciation, sarcasm, and hatred. No animosities are so bitter as religious animosities; just because no interests are so sacred, no issues so momentous. All followers of the Nazarene fanaticism provoked scorn or hatred from both Jew and Greek. But concerning no one of the Apostles - Peter, James, or John - do we find records of such contempt and resentment as concerning Paul. His letters abound in references to the inimical estimates of him that men formed. Either he was more sensitive than his brethren, and more acutely felt his social ostracism, or there was in his character, or in his apostolate, something that made his Christian advocacy more anomalous and provocative than that of the other Apostles. The historian of the Acts of the Apostles, in his records of Paul, confirms the expressions of Paul s own letters. Festus, for instance, is represented as unable to restrain himself even upon the judgment-seat; and in the presence of King Agrippa he breaks in upon...
